Narcotics Projects and Activities:

[REDACTED]

25X1

● Last Friday, [REDACTED] convened the first session of his Panel on the Employment of Classified Information in Drug Enforcement. Discussion focused on the Terms of Reference (TOR) which [REDACTED] had drafted. (Attached.) Members perceived that the task confronting them might extend beyond the security policy matters which [REDACTED] had delineated. They saw the need to address broader management issues involved in how information is disseminated to law enforcement agencies. They also suggested the Panel be expanded to include representatives from COMIREX and HUMINT Committees, but rejected the idea of adding Justice or the FBI. Their rationale was to keep the membership as small as possible and confined to intelligence producers. Recommended fixes to the TOR will be LDXed to [REDACTED] by next Wednesday after the panel members have had a chance to review it in light of Friday's discussion and the various background materials that [REDACTED] provided. Next week's meeting will consider the revised TOR, [REDACTED]

Cruise Missile Study:

[REDACTED]

25X1

- [REDACTED] continued work on the recommendations to be included in the [REDACTED] section of the Cruise Missile report. Due date: 19 Sept.

25X1

● [REDACTED] Cruise Missile Working Group alternate member attached to OSD-C³I (Tactical Intelligence Systems), informed [REDACTED] that OSD is working on the GDIP and he requested a copy of the draft report to use in their effort. After delivering a copy of the report to [REDACTED] spent two hours in his office discussing the recommendations and relevant background. [REDACTED] apologized for not having spent more time with the working group and indicated that he would be willing to devote additional energy to this emerging threat in the future. Mr. Bill Markowitz, OSD chief scientist, also proffered several leads on current work in the area of artificial intelligence during our discussion.

MEMORANDUM FOR: Members, Critical Intelligence Problems Committee

FROM:

Executive Secretary

SUBJECT:

Strategic Cruise Missile Report

ATTACHMENT

1. At the 29 August CIPC meeting the members agreed that a three-week period would be sufficient to develop your respective formal comments on subject report, to include the key judgements and recommendations. To ensure that all of us are working toward common dates, the following schedule is provided:

- 19 September 1983 - Formal comments from the members due;
- 23 September 1983 - Final Strategic Cruise Missile Report to the DCI/DDCI for review and promulgation.

25X1

2. It is also requested that your responses identify what actions your organizations already have underway relative to the cruise missile problem, and those actions that can be accomplished relatively easily without significant resource impacts. This information will be incorporated into the final report as appropriate or provided to the DCI/DDCI in a covering memorandum.
